Educators contribute to the profession

Evidence: Teacher website

Reflection: My website (msgarstang.weebly.com) acts as a living testament to my passion in the profession. I am always adding inspiring videos, links, and ideas, with the interest to support and inspire my colleagues. It has become my platform for sharing resources, generating ideas, and has also become my parking lot for my collected sources of inspiration.

In creating this site, I have learned the challenge and efficiency of wading through material, in order to find the best, and most suitable strategies and sources to use in my lessons. By learning the skill of website creation, I can better serve my students needs in regards to 21st C learning. This website acts as a forum for communication in addition to enabling me to contribute to the profession. Using technology keeps me up to date on the possibilities of integrating technology into the classroom.
